If your dog is injured or gets sick and the Howladay Inn feels the dog should see a veterinarian we will first attempt to contact the owner to discuss options and possible courses of action. If the Howladay Inn cannot contact the owner and we feel the dog poses a hazard to other dogs, is in danger of death or further injury, or is in danger of sustaining a permanent injury the Howladay Inn will take the dog to a veterinarian at the Howladay Inn's discretion without consulting the owner. The Howladay Inn will first attempt to take the dog to the veterinarian indicated as the primary caregiver on the application; however, if the Howladay Inn cannot get an appointment with that veterinarian in a reasonable amount of time arrangements with a different veterinarian will be made at the discretion of the Howladay Inn.

People listed as Emergency Contacts on Howladay Inn application are authorized to discuss the medical care of dogs they are listed as emergency contacts for including decisions such as what medical treatment plan to follow, whether or not medical care should be sought, how much should be spent to care for the dog, and what amount of money should not be exceeded when caring for the dog.. In the absence of the ability to contact the dog's owners or a designated emergency contact the owner authorizes the Howladay Inn to make all of the above decisions.

Full payment for all medical care provided to your dog(s) during their stay at the Howladay Inn is due at the time of pickup.
